ABOUT ME

Biomedical engineer and junior web developer, with more than three years of experience developing algorithms in Python with various libraries, focused on areas such as electronics and artificial vision and more than 1 year emphasizing web development with HTML, CSS, JavaScript, Django, using good programming practices and applying their respective version control with GitHub. In addition, I have worked with relational databases such as MySQL and PostgreSQL, I have tutored colleagues on topics such as programming logic and OOP.

I like to be in constant learning of new technologies and teamwork in an organized and proactive way.
